THE ONE-LINE VERDICT

Alberta's open-licence online market generated C$122.1m (~$87.2m) of non-adjusted GGR on C$2,885m (~$2.06bn) of wagers in its first 80 days (13 Jul–30 Sep 2026), exiting September at C$56.6m (~$40.4m), +30.7% MoM, with only 24 operators live against 51 registered brands. It is a casino-led (78% of NAGGR), thin-hold (4.2%) land-grab with Ontario-parity economics (20% GGR share + 3% earmarks), but the regulator has not yet disclosed operator shares, the adjusted-GGR levy base or any channelization measurement — the headline is strong, the invoice is still open.

1 EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

- Primary release. The Alberta iGaming Corporation (AiGC) published its first Market Performance Report on 23 Oct 2026, covering 13 Jul–30 Sep 2026 (80 days). Data are operator-submitted, unaudited, CAD, online-only; AiGC says results reflect gradual operator onboarding and are 'not a full representation of the total iGaming market'.
- Market size. Non-adjusted gross gaming revenue (NAGGR = wagers less winnings, before any promotional adjustment) was C$122.1m (~$87.2m) on wagers of C$2,885.1m (~$2.06bn) and winnings of C$2,762.9m (~$1.97bn): a blended hold of 4.23%, with 95.6–95.9% of wagers returned to players each month.
- Trajectory. NAGGR ran C$22.2m (~$15.9m) in July (19 trading days), C$43.3m (~$30.9m) in August (+95%) and C$56.6m (~$40.4m) in September (+30.7%). On a per-day basis the market moved from C$1.17m to C$1.40m to C$1.89m (+61% Jul→Sep), so growth is not simply a calendar effect.
- Product mix is casino-heavy. Launch-to-date NAGGR: RNG casino C$95.5m (~$68.2m, 78.2%), sports & event betting C$20.1m (~$14.4m, 16.5%), live casino C$6.6m (~$4.7m, 5.4%). September split: 75.6% / 19.5% / 4.9%. No fantasy or P2P (poker) revenue was reported — those verticals had no monthly activity in the period.
- Betting inflected in September. Betting NAGGR more than doubled to C$11.1m (~$7.9m, +113% MoM) on wagers of C$152.7m (~$109.1m, +36%), as hold jumped to 7.3% from 4.6% in August — a mix of NFL/NHL season start and operator-favourable results. Casino NAGGR grew a steadier +19.9% to C$42.8m (~$30.6m) at a 4.3% hold.
- Online vs retail. This report captures only the privately-operated online market conducted and managed by AiGC. AGLC's own Play Alberta platform, the land-based casinos, VLTs and lottery are reported separately by AGLC and are not in these figures; online penetration of Alberta's total gambling spend is therefore n/a from this release.
- Players. Active accounts rose from 226,959 (Jul) to 314,091 (Aug) to 388,585 (Sep, +23.7%); AiGC stresses these are accounts, not unique players (multi-operator sign-ups inflate the count). ARPPA rose from C$98 to C$138 to C$146 (~$104); wagers per active account were C$3,287 (~$2,348) in September.
- Operator count is still ramping. 15 operators were live at launch (16 active in July), 20 in August and 24 at 30 Sep; AiGC expects 'several more' by end-2026. The AiGC registered-site directory listed 51 brands on 10 Nov 2026 (28 had been approved pre-launch and 22 sites went live on day one per trade press). AiGC publishes no operator-level revenue or share data.
- Legal framework. The iGaming Alberta Act, SA 2025 c I-0.2 (Bill 48: introduced 26 Mar 2025, passed 15 May 2025, AiGC-establishing sections proclaimed by Order in Council 4 Jun 2025) sits alongside the Gaming, Liquor and Cannabis Act, RSA 2000. AGLC is the regulator (registration, Standards & Requirements for Internet Gaming (SRIG), centralized self-exclusion); AiGC is the Crown corporation that 'conducts and manages' the lottery schemes under Criminal Code s.207 and holds the operating agreements, AML oversight, complaints and financial reporting — a replica of Ontario's AGCO/iGO split.
- Licensing regime. Registration opened 13 Jan 2026. Operators need AGLC registration plus an AiGC operating agreement; eligibility requires a minimum three years' operating history in a regulated North American jurisdiction and a comprehensive financial audit; RG Check accreditation and self-exclusion API integration are preconditions; AiGC guides 3–4 months end-to-end. Fees per law-firm guides: C$50,000 (~$35.7k) one-time application fee and C$150,000 (~$107k) annual registration fee per operator [AGLC fee schedule not read directly]. No cap on licences.
- Levy is a revenue share, not a tax. AiGC retains a 20% 'provincial share' of gross gaming revenue, plus 3% of gross revenue guaranteed for Indigenous Relations/First Nations (2%) and Social Responsibility (1%) — an effective 23% of GGR, with operators retaining 80% of the headline base. Whether the base is NAGGR or an 'adjusted' GGR net of bonuses/promos is not disclosed in the report; the 'non-adjusted' label implies an adjusted figure exists [unverified].
- Implied public take (estimate). If levied on NAGGR, the 20% share would be C$24.4m (~$17.4m) and the full 23% C$28.1m (~$20.1m) for the 80 days; September alone implies C$11.3m (~$8.1m) at 20%, or ~C$136m (~$97m) annualised — already well above the C$75m (~$53.6m) year-one iGaming revenue line reported from Budget 2026 (secondary) and the ~C$100m (~$71m) annual figure government cited pre-launch.
- Channelization. Government data (per AiGC) put ~70% of Alberta's pre-launch iGaming activity with unregulated operators; targets are 70% channelization after year one and 75% by year two. Unregulated operators had to cease Alberta betting and return balances by 13 Jul 2026 but could keep marketing and pre-registering. No channelization measurement has yet been published.

- Payments. Fiat only through recognized compliant financial institutions; cryptocurrency is expressly prohibited under provincial/federal AML rules. No requirement for an Alberta office or Alberta-located servers (data must meet Canadian/Albertan privacy rules per SRIG s.5); English is the only mandated language; poker/P2P liquidity must be ring-fenced to players physically in Alberta.
- Responsible gambling & advertising. 18+ with mandatory verification; RG Check accreditation; AGLC centralized self-exclusion with three options (iGaming only, land-based only, both); auto-play and simultaneous multi-screen play prohibited; bonuses cannot be marketed as 'free' if the player must risk money; advertising may not target minors or use active professional athletes except for RG messaging. SRIG was issued 14 Jan 2026 and its advertising section updated 18 Jun 2026.
- Ontario benchmark. Ontario took C$4.08bn (~$2.91bn) of wagers in its first 88 days (Apr–Jun 2022) with roughly three times Alberta's population; Alberta's C$2.89bn in 80 days equates to ~C$590 per resident versus ~C$270 for Ontario's launch quarter (population-based estimate) — Alberta is wealthier, younger and had a larger pre-existing grey market.
- Scale vs projections. Pre-launch estimates put mature annual GGR at C$750–900m (~$536–643m) with ~C$200m (~$143m) flowing to the province (secondary). September ×12 is C$679m (~$485m) with fewer than half of registered brands live, so those projections look conservative rather than aggressive.
- Enforcement/political direction. The UCP government framed Bill 48 as consumer protection and revenue repatriation rather than expansion; critics (CBC, Apr 2026) argued protections are too light, and the June advertising update shows AGLC is willing to tighten mid-flight. The near-term direction is more operators, more data transparency (monthly reports) and tighter marketing — not higher levies.
- Read-through for B2Tech. Entry cost is modest (≈C$200k year-one fees, 23% of GGR, RG Check/SOC 2-type compliance) and the market is growing >20% MoM, but it is a casino-led, 4%-hold, promotion-intensive fight against 24 live incumbents including FanDuel, bet365, DraftKings, BetMGM, Caesars, Penn/theScore and the Super Group/Apricot stable. A sportsbook-led entrant is competing for C$11m/month of betting NAGGR; a casino-led entrant for C$43m/month, with live dealer (C$2.8m/month) the least contested niche.
- Data caveats. Trade-press figures conflict: casino.org reported C$2.76bn and Soloazar C$2.81bn of wagers against the regulator's C$2,885.1m; CTV described 'C$56m since launch' (September alone). We use AiGC's Excel throughout. All figures are unaudited and 'may be subject to revision'.

3 DEEP-DIVE — ONLINE CASINO (RNG + LIVE DEALER)

Casino is 78% of launch-to-date NAGGR at a 4.2% hold; live dealer is a 5% niche with a 2.3% hold — the Alberta market is a slots market first.

RNG CASINO

RNG casino produced C$95.5m (~$68.2m) of NAGGR on C$2,275.2m (~$1.63bn) of wagers, 78.2% of regulated revenue and 78.9% of handle.

- Covers slots, progressive jackpots, RNG table games, poker and keno under AiGC's definition, across the 80-day period.
- Monthly NAGGR: C$17.0m (~$12.1m) in July's 19 days, C$35.7m (~$25.5m) in August (+110%), C$42.8m (~$30.6m) in September (+19.9%).
- Hold crept up each month — 4.02%, 4.20%, 4.27% — consistent with a slot-dominated mix with theoretical RTP of 95–96%.
- No sign of operators buying share through loosened game maths.

CASINO SHARE AND GROWTH

Casino's NAGGR share peaked at 82.3% in August, fell to 75.6% in September as football returned; September growth came from new accounts and operators.

- Absolute casino number still grew nearly 20% in September while active accounts rose 23.7%, so casino revenue per account softened slightly.
- Four new operators joined during August–September; growth was not from deeper monetisation of existing players.

LIVE CASINO

Live casino is small: C$6.6m (~$4.7m) NAGGR on C$284.1m (~$203m) wagers, 5.4% of revenue but 9.8% of handle at ~2.3% hold.

- Hold remarkably stable by month: 2.35%, 2.33%, 2.30% for live-dealer blackjack/baccarat/game shows.
- Share of NAGGR fell each month (6.3% → 5.6% → 4.9%) as RNG slots and betting scaled faster.
- Supply is not the constraint given Evolution-style studios serving Ontario from Canadian studios; demand among a slots-oriented Albertan base is.
- For an operator, live is a retention and VIP tool rather than a revenue engine here.

COMBINED CASINO MIX

Casino plus live was C$102.1m (~$72.9m), 83.6% of NAGGR — materially above Ontario's typical casino weight, signalling a casino-first grey market.

- Many day-one brands are pure casino: the Apricot/Casino Rewards stable (Captain Cooks, Casino Classic, Golden Tiger, Grand Mondial, Luxury Casino, Yukon Gold, Zodiac).
- Also Jackpot City, Royal Vegas, Ruby Fortune, Spin Casino, PlayOJO, Slots Magic, LuckyDays, CasinoDays, Delta, Betty, PureCasino.ca.
- Caesars Palace/Horseshoe/Golden Nugget/Stardust/Hollywood casino-only skins add to the mix, explaining it as much as player preference.

FANTASY AND POKER

No fantasy or peer-to-peer (poker) revenue was reported for any month; these verticals were either not yet launched or immaterial.

- AiGC reports products only where there is monthly activity.
- Poker is handicapped by ring-fencing all P2P liquidity to players physically in Alberta (~4.9m population), ruling out shared-liquidity networks.
- Poker will stay marginal unless an interprovincial compact emerges.

COMMERCIAL IMPLICATIONS

A casino entrant competes for roughly C$43m (~$31m) a month of RNG revenue growing ~20% MoM against at least 20 casino-capable live brands.

- Bonus economics are tightened by the 'free' advertising rule and uncertainty over whether promotional spend is deductible from the 23% levy base.
- The 'non-adjusted' GGR label implies an adjusted post-promo figure exists for settlement, but AiGC has not published it.
- Promo intensity cannot yet be inferred from the public data.

4 DEEP-DIVE — SPORTS & EVENT BETTING

Betting NAGGR doubled to C$11.1m in September on a 7.3% hold as the NFL/NHL calendar arrived; it is 16.5% of the market to date and the swing factor for Q4.

BETTING VOLUMES

Betting generated C$20.1m (~$14.4m) NAGGR on C$325.8m (~$233m) handle over 80 days — 16.5% of revenue on 11.3% of handle.

- Covers traditional sports, esports and novelty markets; singles, live, pools and parlays.
- Monthly NAGGR: C$3.8m (Jul, 19 days), C$5.2m (Aug), C$11.1m (Sep).
- Handle rose C$60.9m → C$112.2m → C$152.7m (~$109m), +36% in September against +20% for the market overall.
- Per calendar day, handle went from C$3.2m to C$3.6m to C$5.1m.

HOLD VOLATILITY

Hold swung 6.24% (Jul), 4.63% (Aug), 7.27% (Sep); volatility, not handle, explains most of September's +113% NAGGR jump.

- At August's hold, September's handle would have yielded ~C$7.1m, so roughly C$4m of the increase was results-driven.
- A 6–7% blended hold is consistent with a parlay-heavy North American product set rather than a European low-margin singles book.
- FanDuel, DraftKings, BetMGM, Caesars, bet365, theScore Bet, BetRivers, Bally Bet, DAZN Bet and Sports Interaction are all live.

Q4 OUTLOOK

Betting's share troughed at 12.1% in August and recovered to 19.5% in September; we expect Q4 handle well above C$200m (~$143m) a month [estimate].

- August was the MLB-only window for North American operators; October brings full NFL, NHL and NBA openers plus MLB post-season, pushing share higher.
- AiGC does not disclose promo spend, so true net margin after free bets and odds boosts cannot be derived.
- A 7.3% 'structural' hold on a non-adjusted basis probably translates to a mid-single-digit net margin after promotions [estimate].

PRODUCT RULES

Product rules are permissive by Canadian standards, though peer-to-peer exchanges ring-fenced to Alberta players are commercially unviable at this population size.

- Single-event betting, live/in-play, esports and novelty markets are all within AiGC's 'Eligible iGames' definition.
- No restriction on betting on Canadian professional or amateur leagues disclosed in the AiGC material.

ENTRANT IMPLICATIONS

A sportsbook-led entrant addresses ~C$11m (~$8m) a month of gross win, dominated by brands with Ontario and US databases and national media deals.

- Alberta-specific hook: Calgary/Edmonton NHL and CFL fandom plus land-based crossover; PureCasino.ca is the only Alberta land-based operator with a registered online brand so far.
- Advertising constraints bite hardest in sports — no active professional athletes in creative, no inducement-style 'free bet' claims — blunting the US-style acquisition playbook.

5 DEEP-DIVE — LICENSING, LEVY & LEGAL FRAMEWORK

An Ontario-clone 'conduct and manage' model: AGLC registers, AiGC contracts; C$200k of year-one fees and a 20% GGR share plus 3% earmarks, with no licence cap and no local-presence requirement.

ENABLING STATUTE

The iGaming Alberta Act (Bill 48) establishes an Ontario-clone 'conduct and manage' model under Criminal Code s.207, carrying the same residual federal-law risk as Ontario.

- SA 2025 c I-0.2, introduced by Minister Dale Nally on 26 Mar 2025, passed 15 May 2025; AiGC sections proclaimed in force 4 Jun 2025.
- Operates alongside the Gaming, Liquor and Cannabis Act, RSA 2000.
- Private operators supply under operating agreements, the same architecture as iGaming Ontario, whose legality has been tested in Ontario litigation [outcome not verified this session].

REGULATOR ROLES

AGLC registers and regulates; AiGC, a Crown corporation led by CEO Dan Keene, contracts, collects the provincial share and reports — while AGLC also runs Play Alberta.

- AGLC issues the SRIG (published 14 Jan 2026, advertising section updated 18 Jun 2026), certifies technology via accredited test facilities and runs centralized Self-Exclusion.
- AiGC executes operating agreements, oversees AML, handles public complaints and publishes the monthly market report.
- The Crown is simultaneously regulator, conductor and competitor.

REGISTRATION PROCESS

Registration opened 13 Jan 2026 with no operator cap; AiGC guides 3–4 months from complete application to execution.

- Three-pronged AGLC process: due diligence (suitability), compliance (technical certification, SOC-type security attestation, go-live checks) and self-exclusion integration, then AiGC negotiates the agreement.
- Eligibility requires active AGLC registration, three years' operating history in a regulated North American jurisdiction and a comprehensive financial audit — effectively excluding grey-market-only brands.
- Unregulated operators had to stop accepting Alberta wagers and refund balances by 13 Jul 2026, but could keep marketing and pre-registering accounts.

FEES AND REQUIREMENTS

Fees are a one-time C$50,000 (~$35.7k) application fee and a C$150,000 (~$107k) annual registration fee per operator, with no local-presence requirement.

- Per Gowling WLG and Mondaq guides, consistent with Blakes and Canadian Gaming Business coverage of the January AGLC bulletin.
- Treatment of multiple skins under one registration should be confirmed with AGLC; suppliers pay a separate (lower) fee [amount not verified].
- No local-office, local-ownership or Alberta-server requirement; data must satisfy Canadian and Albertan privacy rules (SRIG s.5); English is the only mandatory language.

LEVY STRUCTURE

AiGC retains 20% of GGR plus 3% earmarks (2% Indigenous Relations/First Nations, 1% Social Responsibility), an all-in 23% public take; model 23% on NAGGR as conservative.

- Levy is contractual, not statutory; operators retain 80% of the headline base before the 3%.
- Compares with Ontario's 20% of promo-adjusted gaming revenue plus separate First Nations arrangements.
- The 'non-adjusted' label implies settlement on an adjusted base, but neither AiGC nor AGLC has published adjustment rules.
- Alberta's 8% corporate income tax (Canada's lowest) and no separate gaming excise are genuine advantages versus most US states and the UK's 21% remote gaming duty.

PUBLIC FINANCE

The September run-rate of ~C$11.3m (~$8.1m) a month at 20% is already ahead of Budget 2026's C$75m (~$53.6m) year-one target; no levy increase expected in 12–24 months.

- Government talked pre-launch of ~C$100m (~$71m) a year; earmarks add ~C$1.7m a month.
- Fiscal goodwill rather than pressure to raise the rate; we see no proposal and no mechanism for a levy increase.

6 DEEP-DIVE — OPERATOR LANDSCAPE, CHANNELIZATION & ONTARIO BENCHMARK

24 operators live at 30 Sep (15 at launch) and 51 registered brands by 10 Nov; no operator-level data, but Alberta's per-capita launch handle is roughly double Ontario's.

OPERATOR COUNT

Active operators grew from 15 at launch (13 Jul) to 24 at 30 Sep 2026, with 51 registered brands by 10 Nov and 'several more' expected by end-2026.

- 16 active during July, 20 in August; AGLC had approved 28 operators pre-launch (May 2026) and 22 sites went live day one (trade press).
- Gap between 51 brands and 24 operators reflects multi-brand operators (bet365, FanDuel, Caesars, theScore list two skins; Apricot/Casino Rewards seven) and registered-but-not-trading operators.
- Revenue per active operator rose from C$1.39m in July to C$2.17m in August and C$2.36m (~$1.7m) in September; accounts per operator rose from ~14,200 to ~16,200.

BRAND ROSTER

The live brand list spans every tier; AiGC publishes no operator shares, but the top three probably hold more than half of betting NAGGR [estimate, unverified].

- North American scale players: FanDuel, DraftKings/Golden Nugget, BetMGM/PartyCasino, Caesars Palace/Caesars Sportsbook/Horseshoe, Penn's theScore Bet/theScore Casino/Hollywood Casino, BetRivers, Bally Bet/Monopoly Casino, Boyd/Stardust.
- European and global: bet365, Betway and Super Group casino stable, BetVictor, 888, Tonybet, DAZN Bet, Stake.
- Canadian-origin: BET99, Sports Interaction, PowerPlay, Betty, Casino Time, BetNova, Lucky Liner, Vegas Club; casino specialists include PlayOJO, Slots Magic, SpinGenie, LuckyDays, CasinoDays, Delta, Mega Casino, Jackpot City, Royal Vegas, Ruby Fortune, Spin Casino.
- One Alberta land-based crossover, PureCasino.ca; likely top three by analogy with Ontario are FanDuel, bet365, DraftKings/BetMGM.

CHANNELIZATION

AiGC targets 70% channelization after year one and 75% by year two from a ~70% unregulated base, but enforcement relies on moral suasion.

- Compliance lever is the 13 Jul 2026 cease-and-refund requirement plus eligibility rules keeping non-regulated-market brands out.
- AiGC's stated strategy is public education on the 'risks associated with illegal offshore sites'.
- No published blocking, payment-blocking or ISP mechanism — a weaker toolkit than Ontario's AGCO, which has used supplier pressure and advertising-ban enforcement.

ONTARIO BENCHMARK

Alberta recorded C$2.89bn in 80 days with ~4.9m residents, about C$590 per resident versus Ontario's ~C$270 — roughly twice Ontario's launch intensity per capita.

- Ontario recorded C$4.08bn (~$2.91bn) of wagers in its first 88 days (4 Apr–30 Jun 2022) with roughly 15m residents.
- Populations approximate; Ontario Q1 GGR of ~C$162m and ~492,000 active accounts are from memory and unverified this session.
- Higher per-capita wagering is consistent with a larger pre-existing grey market, higher disposable income and operators arriving with mature Ontario products and Canadian brand awareness.

ENTRANT IMPLICATIONS

The first-mover database advantage has largely been taken by the 15 day-one operators; differentiation must come from product rather than acquisition spend.

- The 'several more' expected by year-end will include Ontario-licensed operators completing AGLC's 3–4 month process.
- Product levers: live dealer, localised Alberta sports content, land-based tie-ups with Alberta casinos or First Nations partners who benefit from the 2% earmark.
- The monthly AiGC report tracks market growth and mix but not share; operators must triangulate share from supplier data and affiliate traffic.

7 DEEP-DIVE — PAYMENTS, RESPONSIBLE GAMBLING & ADVERTISING

Fiat-only with crypto banned, mandatory ID verification, RG Check and centralized self-exclusion, no autoplay, and an advertising code that was tightened on 18 Jun 2026 — before launch.

PAYMENTS AND AML

Payments are fiat-only through recognized, compliant financial institutions, with cryptocurrency 'strictly restricted' — binding crypto-native Stake to a fiat-only basis.

- AiGC carries the AML oversight role; operators are reporting entities under Canada's PCMLTFA/FINTRAC regime.
- No method-level data published; Interac e-Transfer, debit/credit cards and bank transfers dominate Canadian regulated markets [general market knowledge, not from the report].
- No deposit-limit cap or affordability threshold mandated beyond the operator's obligation to offer limit-setting tools.

> "strictly restricted" — AiGC

RESPONSIBLE GAMBLING

Every player is identity- and age-verified (18+), every operator needs RG Check accreditation and Self-Exclusion API integration before signing its operating agreement.

- RG Check is the Responsible Gambling Council's standard also used in Ontario.
- Self-exclusion is fully digital with three choices — all registered iGaming, all land-based casinos and racing entertainment centres, or both — linking online and land-based unlike Ontario's BetGuard at launch.
- Game-design rules prohibit auto-play and simultaneous multi-screen slot play; offers may not be called 'free' if the player must risk money or incur a loss.
- 1% of gross revenue is earmarked for social-responsibility programmes covering mental health, addiction and research.

> "built in from day one" — AiGC

ADVERTISING RULES

SRIG section 4.1 (issued 14 Jan 2026, updated 18 Jun 2026) bans targeting minors and active professional athletes, pushing inducement advertising into owned/logged-in channels.

- Active athletes permitted only for social-responsibility messaging.
- Online, print and billboard advertising permitted but content, endorsers, targeting and public communication of bonuses/free bets are restricted; RG messaging required; operators fully responsible for affiliate content.
- Close to Ontario's AGCO Standard 2.03 regime; removes most of the US-style sign-up-offer blitz from mass media.

OPERATIONAL IMPLICATIONS

Rules favour operators with mature Ontario compliance stacks, which is why the day-one roster was Ontario-heavy.

- Same RG Check accreditation, similar advertising constraints, comparable self-exclusion API and broadly parallel technical standards let Ontario operators port most of their programme.
- For a non-Ontario entrant such as B2Tech, RG Check accreditation (typically multi-month), SOC-type security attestation, test-lab certification of every game and affiliate-liability provisions are the critical-path items rather than fees.

REGULATORY DIRECTION

Direction of travel is towards tighter marketing, not looser; we expect further restrictions on celebrity/influencer use, bonus communication and volume/placement before any loosening.

- AGLC amended advertising standards before a single regulated bet was taken.
- Opposition and public-health critics argued protections are insufficient (CBC, Apr 2026); parallel federal pressure on sports-betting advertising.
- We expect AiGC to begin publishing self-exclusion enrolment and RG-tool usage statistics as part of its transparency agenda.

8 HIGHLIGHTS & LOWLIGHTS

▲ HIGHLIGHTS

- Growth is real, not calendar-driven: NAGGR per day rose 61% from July (C$1.17m) to September (C$1.89m, ~$1.35m) and active accounts +23.7% MoM in September, with fewer than half of the 51 registered brands trading — the market is still in its onboarding phase. structural
- Ontario-parity economics with a lighter total burden than most mature markets: 20% GGR share + 3% earmarks, C$200k (~$143k) of year-one fees, Alberta's 8% corporate tax, no gaming excise, no local office/server requirement and English-only obligations keep fixed entry cost low. structural
- A large, identified channelization pool: government estimates ~70% of pre-launch activity was unregulated, operators were forced to cease and refund by 13 Jul 2026, and the policy target is 70% regulated after year one / 75% by year two — the regulated pie should keep expanding independent of underlying demand growth. structural
- Betting is under-penetrated at 16.5% of NAGGR launch-to-date versus 19.5% in September alone; Q4 NFL/NHL/NBA seasonality and the 7.3% September hold point to betting share climbing into the mid-20s, which favours sportsbook-capable entrants. early
- Live dealer is the least contested vertical — C$2.8m (~$2.0m) of September NAGGR, 4.9% share and a flat 2.3% hold — leaving white space for a live-casino-led proposition rather than another slots skin. early
- Unusual transparency: AiGC publishes a monthly Excel with wagers, winnings, NAGGR, accounts and product splits within three weeks of month-end, enabling precise market-growth tracking (though not share). structural
- The public purse is already ahead of plan — a September run-rate of ~C$11.3m (~$8.1m) a month at 20% annualises near C$136m (~$97m) against a reported C$75m (~$53.6m) budget line — which removes near-term fiscal pressure to raise the levy. one-off

▼ LOWLIGHTS

- Casino concentration (78% of NAGGR, 84% with live) makes the market politically exposed: critics already call the protections inadequate, and any tightening of slot rules (stake limits, session caps, bonus curbs) would hit the bulk of revenue. structural
- The levy base is undisclosed: reported revenue is explicitly 'non-adjusted', implying settlement on an adjusted figure whose rules neither AiGC nor AGLC has published — promo deductibility, and therefore the true effective rate, cannot be modelled from public data. watch
- No operator-level disclosure: shares, concentration and competitor promo intensity are n/a, so an entrant cannot size the attainable share from regulator data and must rely on supplier/affiliate triangulation. structural
- Crowded and Ontario-seasoned: 24 live operators (51 brands) including FanDuel, bet365, DraftKings, BetMGM, Caesars, Penn and Super Group arrived with Canadian databases and mature compliance; the day-one acquisition window has closed and the 3–4 month onboarding means a new applicant lands in Q1–Q2 2027 at the earliest. structural
- Advertising is being tightened, not loosened: SRIG's advertising section was amended on 18 Jun 2026 before launch, 'free' bonus claims and active-athlete creative are barred, operators carry affiliate liability, and federal pressure on sports-betting advertising persists — the US acquisition playbook does not transfer. watch
- Thin, promo-sensitive economics: a 4.2% blended hold and C$146 (~$104) monthly ARPPA on non-unique accounts leave little room once a 23% levy, platform/content fees and bonus costs are deducted; betting hold swung 4.6%→7.3% in one month, so monthly results will be volatile. mixed
- Data and enforcement gaps: figures are unaudited and revisable, accounts are not unique players, channelization is unmeasured and AiGC's anti-offshore toolkit appears limited to education and eligibility rules rather than payment or ISP blocking; the Criminal Code s.207 'conduct and manage' model also carries the same residual legal-challenge risk as Ontario's. governance

9 FORECAST & OUTLOOK

Guidance bridge. There is no formal guidance to bridge — AiGC's first report simply sets the base. The moving parts over the next 12 months are (i) operator onboarding: 24 active at 30 Sep against 51 registered brands, with 'several more' agreements expected by end-2026 and Ontario-licensed applicants completing AGLC's 3–4 month process through H1 2027; (ii) seasonality: betting's share should rise from 19.5% in September through the NFL/NHL/NBA calendar, lifting both handle and blended hold; (iii) channelization: the 70% year-one target has no published measurement yet, and AiGC's October report (due third week of November) will show whether the +20–30% monthly growth persists once launch promotions fade; (iv) rules: SRIG advertising standards were tightened on 18 Jun 2026 and further marketing restrictions are more likely than any levy change; and (v) disclosure: the adjusted-GGR settlement base and operator-level data remain unpublished, which matters more to an entrant's P&L than any headline growth number.

SEPTEMBER 2026 NAGGR RUN-RATE	OPERATOR ONBOARDING STILL TO COME	IMPLIED PROVINCIAL SHARE AT SEPT RUN-RATE (EST.)	CHANNELIZATION TARGET
C$56.6m/month (~$40.4m)	24 active vs 51 registered brands	~C$11.3m/month at 20% (~$8.1m)	70% after year one, 75% by year two
×12 = C$679m (~$485m) annualised; +30.7% MoM, +61% per-day vs July	AiGC expects 'several more' by YE2026; further Ontario-licensed entrants H1 2027	≈C$136m annualised vs reported Budget 2026 year-one line of C$75m (~$53.6m)	From ~70% unregulated pre-launch; no measurement published yet

Independent view. Our independent view: first-12-month NAGGR (13 Jul 2026–12 Jul 2027) of C$700–800m (~$500–571m) [estimate], assuming monthly NAGGR rises to C$65–75m by Q1 2027 as onboarding completes and betting seasonality kicks in, then plateaus as launch promotions normalise; that already reaches the lower end of the C$750–900m pre-launch 'mature market' projections, which we now regard as conservative for year two. Mix shifts modestly toward betting (20–25% of NAGGR in Q4/Q1) while casino + live stays above 75%; blended hold should hold at 4.2–4.6%. Public take at 23% on NAGGR would be ~C$160–185m (~$114–132m) in year one [estimate], comfortably above budget, so we assign a low probability to any levy increase in the next 24 months and a higher probability to tighter advertising, bonus and affiliate rules plus eventual publication of RG metrics. For B2Tech, the attainable prize for a 2027 entrant is a 1–3% share of a ~C$800m market [estimate] — C$8–24m of NAGGR — unless it brings a differentiated live-dealer or land-based/First Nations-partnered proposition; a me-too sportsbook or slots skin will struggle against 24 incumbents under advertising constraints. Key swing factors: whether the adjusted-GGR base allows meaningful promo deductions (upside to net margins), whether AiGC adds payment- or ISP-blocking against offshore sites (upside to channelization), and any federal advertising legislation (downside to acquisition).

What to watch next quarter:

- AiGC October 2026 Market Performance Report (third week of November): does NAGGR growth hold above +10% MoM post-launch promotions, and does betting share exceed 20%?
- Operator count at 31 Dec 2026 versus the 24 at 30 Sep and the 51 registered brands; which Ontario-licensed operators are still absent (and therefore potential partners or competitors in 2027).
- Publication of the adjusted-GGR / promotional-deduction rules and AiGC's first annual report — the true effective levy rate and any operator-level disclosure.
- AGLC enforcement under the 18 Jun 2026 SRIG advertising update (first sanctions, affiliate actions) and any federal sports-betting advertising legislation.
- First official channelization measurement against the 70% year-one target, and any move to payment- or ISP-blocking of offshore operators.
- Treatment of Play Alberta (AGLC's own platform) — whether it is reported inside the AiGC market data, repositioned or wound down.
- Litigation or federal review of the Criminal Code s.207 'conduct and manage' model in Ontario or Alberta.
- Live-dealer and poker (P2P) activation: first months with reported fantasy/P2P revenue and any interprovincial liquidity discussion.

DATA CONFIDENCE: MEDIUM Market data (wagers, winnings, NAGGR, product split, accounts, ARPPA, operator counts) is HIGH confidence — taken directly from AiGC's September 2026 Market Performance Report Excel and cross-checked to AiGC's 23 Oct 2026 release and four trade reports (note trade-press wager totals of C$2.76bn/C$2.81bn conflict with the regulator's C$2,885.1m, which we use). Licensing fees (C$50k/C$150k), the Budget 2026 C$75m line, the 28-operator pre-launch approval and SRIG advertising details are MEDIUM confidence — sourced from law-firm guides and trade press; the AGLC fee schedule and SRIG text were not read in full owing to tool limits. The 23% levy is confirmed by AiGC, but its settlement base (adjusted vs non-adjusted GGR) is [unverified]. Ontario Q1 FY2022-23 GGR (~C$162m) and active accounts (~492k) are from memory and [unverified]; the C$4.08bn Ontario wager figure is from Gaming Intelligence. All forward figures are analyst estimates. FX: USD/CAD 1.40 as of 23 Oct 2026, implied by Yogonet (CA$122.1m = US$87.2m) and SiGMA (CAD56.6m = US$40.4m) conversions; not checked against Bank of Canada.
